FORMAT OF THE DIPLOMA PROGRAM

The program includes ten online modules and is based on a backward planned curriculum developed by AO CMF and IAOO.

At the start of each module, participants will be provided with the study plan containing an overview of self-study material per week, and the dates of the mandatory synchronous activities (eg, webinars and online case discussions) taking place once during each month. The expected time investment for the self-study and synchronous activities amounts to approximately 2–5 hours a week over the whole program period.

Each module will include a pre- and post- module assessment to validate the success of the participant. Each week will end with a formative quiz to help participants to reflect on their knowledge of the specific topic of the week.

All module faculty members supporting the program are experts in their respective fields of oral cancer management and support the participants in gaining knowledge by answering questions and steering weekly discussions.

CANCELLATION

Deferral of a course is postponement of commencement after accepting a place, usually for a year. This is commonly known from many university courses, but most continuing medical education courses do not allow deferral. Since the Global Oral Cancer Diploma Program has a limited number of places and enrollment is only once a year deferral is not permitted once a place has been offered. If an applicant does not accept the place or does not pay the first semester fee, they are free to reapply for a place in the program at a future enrollment opportunity. A place following reapplication is not guaranteed.

Withdrawal before commencement

Once an applicant has been offered a place in the program, the fee must be paid in full. Withdrawal after payment of the fee and before commencement of the first module must be declared in writing to the AO CMF event manager (e-mail: oralcancerdiploma@aocmf.org) and will be subject to the following refund policy:

Fee Refund	Withdrawal Date
90 percent	More than 90 days before the program commencement date
75 percent	Between 61 and 90 days before the program commencement date
50 percent	Between 31 and 60 days before the program commencement date
25 percent	Less than 30 days before the start of the program

Withdrawal after commencement

Withdrawal after commencement is not possible.

Withdrawal will mean no readmission to the program other than by reapplication.

Satisfactory progress

Each module requires the following to achieve academic credit for the module:

- Participation in the online discussion forums
- Online attendance at tutored webinars and case discussion sessions (synchronous sessions)
- Submission of one case in Module 7 – Surgery for discussion. For the case submission a specific template will be provided which must be used. For each discussion forum (weekly) and synchronous session (once per month) of the Surgery-Module submitted cases from participants will be randomly selected and discussed.
- Completion of the formative assessment components of the module (weekly and pre- and post-module assessment)

Engagement with program peers and faculty is just as important as self-study. The online synchronous and self-directed activities are an essential part of the learning process.

Due to work or other commitments, it may not be possible for a participant to attend/complete all program activities. BUT to achieve academic credit the following criteria must be met:

- participation in at least 80 percent of all tutored sessions offered in the program is required.
- satisfactory completion of the formative assessment (weekly and pre- and post-module assessment)

- participation in at least 70 percent of the module activities

The learning management system will indicate progress during the module on individual accounts, visible only to the participant and faculty.

Any difficulties engaging in the program should be discussed with the faculty member.

Progression to the next module does not depend on achieving academic credit for a module, but any uncredited modules will need to be completed satisfactorily before receipt of the Global Oral Cancer Diploma. This will require enrolment in a subsequent program to complete the uncredited module(s) and payment of an individual registration fee specific to the module(s).

Failure to achieve academic credit for two or more modules in any semester will result in dismissal from the program.

DURING THE PROGRAM

For ten months, the participant will join ten different modules. For each module, he/she will be provided with self-study material such as pre-recorded lectures, book chapters, journal articles, etc., and weekly tasks, such as joining a weekly group discussion of the topic of the week. In parallel, the participant will have to join one synchronous activity per month at a set time: a webinar and a case discussion. Dates of these activities will be provided well in advance latest during the first week of the training program.

The program will be offered fully online. Therefore, it is important that participants ensure that they have access to a stable internet connection to guarantee a well-functioning online environment. It is the participant's responsibility to ensure good internet connection so that he/she can participate in the program and live activities according to the schedule. By applying and registering for the program, you agree that you are responsible for your information technology (IT) equipment and Internet connection and that all and any claims due to technical misunderstandings or misinterpretations are excluded.

RESULTS OF THE TRAINING PROGRAM

During the program, participants will be required to complete an assessment which must be taken at the end of each week as well as prior and after each module.

Each participant must take part in all assessments to proceed to the next module. For details, refer to the above-mentioned satisfactory progress.

During the module 7 - Surgery of the training program, participants will be required to create a case based on the predefined Learning Objectives of the Surgery module. In addition, a pre- and post-assessment must be taken at the start and at the end of each module. Each participant must take part in both assessments to proceed to the next module. In addition, a minimum 70 percent completion rate of all the module activities must be proven to receive academic credit for the module. For details, refer to the above-mentioned satisfactory progress paragraph.
